

Document-7.2.4-Réaction du gouvernement

The accession PR1979.0271 is part of the Saunders, Dingwall Family fonds (PR0142).

Lieutenant Colonel Bryce Johnston Saunders and his wife Esther Kincaid Saunders were very active in Edmonton business, public and official life during the early 1900s. During his lifetime, Lt. Col. Bryce Saunders worked as an engineer, a surveyor, the Commissioner of Public Works for Edmonton, and was the consulting engineer for the city until his death. Esther Saunders was very active in many women's organizations throughout her life. The Saunders' daughter, Marjorie, married Robert MacFarlane Dingwall. The Dingwalls were also very active in the Edmonton social and business community during the early to mid-1900s. Like her mother, Marjorie was also active in many women's organizations and travelled extensively throughout the world. Robert Dingwall worked as an engineer his entire life and served as a captain in the First World War. Later in his lifetime he began painting and studying art, and with his wife became very active in Edmonton's cultural life.

Fonds consists of the personal and business records of the Saunders and Dingwall families.
